Back in hog heaven

Radio personality Felton Pruitt gives the thumbs-up signal from the studios of KPIG radio in Watsonville on Friday, which means that the irreverent, irrelevant, whacky and excessive brand of hip, fat country, blues and boogie music is available again to Central Coast listeners. After getting dumped from the airwaves last year in favor of alleged rock 'n' roll, Pruitt and his co-piggies returned Thursday morning, after listeners to 107.5 (or, as Pruitt puts it, 107-oink-5) on the radio dial were treated to pig noises all day Wednesday.
